A Winter's Anthem

1. All the meadows are covered with a blanket of snow, where the moonlight reflects like a silvery glow.
The last rose of the summer wears a white crystal crown.
Our world lies so quiet as if immersed in soft down.

2. A new morning breaks through the silver-glittering night and it brightens the world with a gold, shining light.
This new dawn in the winter is fulfilled with great joy for a king is now born for us as poor little boy.

3. There are angels of glory in the bright azure sky singing prayers of hope and a sweet lullaby.
Ox and lamb and the shepherds on the fields bend their knees.
In amazement they pray to the boy child giving peace.
